FEDERAL COURTS MANDATES REVIEW OF PBPP DECISIONS

In Burkett v. Love, 89 F.3d 135 (3rd Cir.1996), the Third Circuit Court of Appeals held that the Pennsylvania appellate courts must review and hear state prisoner's appeals from a denial of parole based upon constitutional grounds other than the alleged abrogation of a liberty interest. Id., @ 140-41. In other words, if a prisoner seeks original/initial parole release and is REFUSED parole by the Board because of his/her race, religion, under arbitrary or capricious rational (e.g., past criminal history, failure to gain D.O.C. or Judge's recommendation; or, "any reason that will never change"), or because he files litigation against state officials, the Third Circuit determined that the State Courts must adjudicate these type of claims.

In response to Burkett, the Commonwealth Court issued an opinion in Weaver v. PBPP, 688 A.2d 766 (Pa.Comw.Ct.1997) and held that the State is not bound by federal court decisions and that a state prisoner seeking original parole release cannot challenge a refusal of parole by the Board via an appeal to the state courts. These two cases (Burkett & Weaver) have created a conflict between the state and federal court systems regarding the proper adjudication of legitimate constitutional claims against the Board. Under federal habeas corpus law (28 U.S.C. §2254), when the State courts refuse to adjudicate federal constitutional claims as mentioned above, a state prisoner can file a habeas corpus petition directly with the U.S. District Court in his jurisdiction. He/she does not have to exhaust state court remedies by filing appeals through the Commonwealth Court of Pa. Supreme Court (the Supreme Court has affirmed the Commonwealth Court's position in prior cases, See, Marshall, 668 A.2d 136 (Pa.Comw.Ct.1995)).

Recently, the U.S. District Court in Marshall v. PBPP, English, et al, Civ.Action.No. 96-380 (W.D. Pa.), has issued two decisions finding that because of the Commonwealth Court's holding in Weaver, prisoner's habeas corpus claims to determine why the Board denied parole when the prisoner alleges a unconstitutional decision-based refusal of parole. In Marshall, the District Court has scheduled a evidentiary hearing to be conducted on September 11, 1997 @ 9:30 a.m., Courtroom #13, 5th Floor, U.S. Courthouse, Pgh., PA, where Board members and Marshall will submit evidence regarding his retaliation claims.

For any prisoner who can demonstrate that he/she has been denied parole for any unconstitutional reason or under misinformation or a duplicated rationale (example: failure to complete prison treatment programing, when you have completed all required programs), you can file a federal habeas corpus action directly in the federal court in your jurisdiction under two claims: (1) denial of parole for unconstitutional reasons, and (2) denial of access to the State courts to challenge the improper parole denial in violation of your constitutional rights. These claims must be adjudicated by the federal courts and will ultimately pressure the Board into applying fair and impartial parole decisions. The Federal courts are empowered to grant a prisoners "unconditional release" when the State refused to adjudicate federal constitutional claims. Read §2254.

The two lists are not all inclusive and may change over time. Additional weaknesses and/or problem areas may be uncovered. Weaknesses and/or problem areas may be overcome or reduced in importance. Programs may be completed or additional programs may be indicated. These lists can and should be reviewed periodically to account for any progress or lack of progress. You should request a review through your Counselor to discuss any changes and to keep your prescriptive program current.

While all participation in all programs is strictly voluntary, progress or lack of progress in dealing with weaknesses and/or problem areas will be one of the factors taken into consideration for all actions requiring staff support such as recommendations for program level changes, job changes, pre-release, commutation, and parole.
